

Hope Out Loud Press Advisory

The 9th Annual Hope Out Loud Peace and Arts Festival is a free community event that will be held Sunday, September 19th in Hartford's Bushnell Park. Featuring more than 40 activist and advocacy organizations that provide literature and contact opportunities, a cooperative family and children's activity area, and 2 stage areas featuring music poetry and speakers highlighting local and international calls to action, Hope Out Loud combines a family fun day with opportunities to increase involvement in social change movements.

The keynote speaker will be Shahid Buttar. He is a civil rights lawyer, hip-hop & electronica MC, independent columnist, non-profit leader, grassroots community organizer, singer and poet. Professionally, he leads the Bill of Rights Defense Committee as Executive Director. He also serves as co-Director of the Rule of Law Institute, a U.S.-based organization supporting international efforts to defend or restore the rule of law.

Featured Main Stage performers include instrumental World Fusion band String Theorie, who Folk Rock band Hap Hazard and Friends and Hartford poet David Pontrelli. String Theorie has been making fast waves with audiences everywhere they play; venues range from WNPR's 'Where We Live', the Mark Twain House, La Paloma Sabanera Coffeehouse, 125 Riverside Drive, Zen Bar and many more!

The Main Stage will feature a diverse program of musical and spoken word performers and speakers drawn from the regional activist community. Across the Festival site is a second staging area where the monthly Hope Out Loud Coffeehouse is re-created in the Park. An open mike provides an opportunity for unscheduled artists to perform with an area with seating and refreshments conducive to casual interaction. Tabling organizations are placed in the central area of the site to capture the audience as it moves from one stage area to another and to allow the tabling groups to hear the artists and speakers. The Family/Kids Activity area provides an opportunity to expose children to free cooperative and peace oriented activities. Originally developed for children, as the quality and diversity of activities available has grown, more adults are participating each year. Many of the activities are derived from the Arts including coloring and painting projects, bubble fun, balloon sculpture, face painting, drum circles and storytelling. The event's schedule has evolved to promote interaction between people participating in the Festival and movement around the site rather than a stage oriented program. This has been facilitated by moving the Festival to a natural setting conducive to promoting interaction among people present in the Northeast corner of Bushnell Park.

Hope Out Loud, which began in 2002 as a response to 9/11, is a shared call for renouncing violence while developing peaceful conflict resolutions, for social justice, and for economic equity with sustainable environmental cohabitation. Hope Out Loud is a celebration of the creativity and vibrancy of Connecticut's advocacy, service, activist and arts communities that are committed to peace and social justice and it is intended to provide inspiration for renewal and recommitment.

Hope Out Loud is supported in part by The Greater Hartford Arts Council and The City of Hartford. Media sponsorship is provided by The Hartford Advocate.

VOLUNTEER with Hope Out Loud 9

Hope Out Loud is all volunteer produced and there are many opportunities for everyone to get directly involved. A large number of volunteers are needed on the day of the event to assist with set-up and strike, at the beginning and end of the Festival respectively. In addition a volunteer grounds crew, stage assistants, and Hope Out Loud table leaders are needed. The Family and Children's Activity Area will need a large crew – those interested should also consider volunteering during July (see below) to gain experience.

Throughout the summer there is a growing need for volunteers. On weekends in July Hope Out Loud provides Family and Children's Activities at the HartBeat Theater Ensemble's 'Plays in the Parks' series. This is an exciting opportunity to work with Hartford's families and children teaching peace through cooperative fun. Summer volunteers are also needed to help with promotional material distribution, telephone outreach and follow up as well as the general planning of the event.

Hope Out Loud is fun to produce and provides many, varied opportunities to exchange ideas and develop relationships within the activist, arts and advocacy communities.
